HOPE FOR TORONTO LIBERALS

Rabbi Maurice N. Eisendrath

A new light of liberalism loomed up upon the local horizon in the formation last week of the first Canadian branch of the International Fellowship of Reconciliation at the Friends Meeting House in Toronto. Here in this little church dedicated to friendship and true fellowship there was held, during Saturday and Sunday of last week, what may yet be regarded as an historic conference. Feeling the dire need for solidarity and the strength which lies in union, a few of the all too few Toronto liberals gathered together to take counsel of each other and to determine some modus operandi wherewith to combat the overpowering conservatism and smugness of their community. Toronto has long been described as the "city of the good" in the narrowest and most restricted connotation of that term. Its apathy or even antagonism to new currents of thought and action has been proclaimed far and wide. The liberal or, God forbid, the radical, has ever been crushed by a devastating sense of utter loneliness and desertion. Voices cried in the wilderness, but there were few to pay them heed.

It was this sheer sense of isolation that drove several of the liberal spirits together and prompted them to hold a little conference to which they invited Mr. J. B. Matthews of New York City, secretary of the Fellowship of Reconciliation in the United States, and president of the World Youth Peace Conference. After two days of earnest discussion, and under the inspiration of Mr. Matthews' most stimulating personality, it was decided to form in Toronto a branch of this world wide organization, thus bringing to our community the force and impact of some of the leading liberals throughout the world. Much may eventuate from this small beginning, and Toronto may be henceforth blessed by a strong and continuous voice calling for vital and radical departures from its self satisfied point of view.

The International Fellowship of Reconciliation, with its present headquarters in Vienna, had its inception during the fevered days of the war, when a handful of noble spirits arose in England heroically to counsel reconciliation between the various hatreds and enmities which then abounded. Ever since that day the organization has grown in numbers and influence. Definitely and irrevocably pacifistic, it has not limited itself to the international field, but recognizing as the supreme value of all life the worth of every human personality, it has sought to bring some semblance of sanity and justice into industrial relationships and has striven likewise to promote amity and understanding between the various religions and races. And young as the movement may be, it has achieved most noteworthy results. In fact, its accomplishment in the field of social and economic reform might put many a church or synagogue to shame. In the United States it has for many years espoused the cause of peace; it has been active in its opposition to military training and preparedness; it has published "The World Tomorrow", one of the finest and most objective publications of our day; it has founded the Brookwood Labor College and has sponsored innumerable retreats for the purpose of bringing harmony and the spirit of brotherhood into the relationship of the white and black. In short it has attempted to actualize in the life of the nation the lofty ethical idealism which all our great religions—Judaism, Catholicism and Protestantism—preach, but so rarely practice.

With this splendid record of achievement as a goad, and the vision of better understanding or reconciliation between all peoples as a goal, the Toronto branch of the Fellowship of Reconciliation was founded. Its task in Toronto will be tedious and hazardous and long, but through the fellowship of these kindred spirits, its influence will undoubtedly be felt. During the two days of the Conference, many vital and pressing issues were earnestly discussed. All the way from the world—embracing problems of war, disarmament, and imperialism, to the more immediate questions of the Ku Klux Klan, unemployment, and the right of free speech in our own community, the discussions traversed the entire gamut of social maladjustments. The enthusiasm and sincerity displayed were exhilarating indeed and evoked great hope for the future. "Though its beginning be small, its latter end may be very great."

Personally, one deep disappointment gnawed at our heart. Our own people were conspicuously absent. Although letters had been sent to many of our co-religionists, although advertisement had been printed in the public press; although announcement had been made in our Jewish journals, less, far less than a handful of our brethren were present. It led us to the very brink of despair, for in what, we wondered, is the vast majority of our brethren interested? Is it merely in golf and contract bridge? Is it only in Palestine or Federation drives? Is it only in the sorely afflicted of their own in Eastern Europe? Are we as selfish and as egoistic as all that? Do not the famished millions in China likewise concern us? Are we not bothered about British imperialism in India and the sufferings of the blacks in South Africa at our own Empires's hands? Are we bothered solely about reconciliation between Jew and Arab as attested by the huge throngs that again and again listen to the selfsame and oft repeated assurances, and are we indifferent concerning possible reconciliation between Negro and white, Gentile and Jew, grinding poverty and unmitigated opulence? Do Jewish problems, pressing and vital as they are, alone matter? Are we as a group to seek refuge in that outworn philosophy of laissez faire; take care of ourselves and let come what may to our brethren without the fold? Are there not minorities to which we as Jews might minister? What has become of the prophetic voice in Israel? All these disturbing thoughts crowded in upon our minds as we looked about us for our Jewish friends . . . looked and looked, but looked in vain.

The Fellowship of Reconciliation is open to all who would join its ranks, and seek through it to establish in our community and throughout the world the sovereignity of the human personality and the reign of peace between all peoples and groups. Let us hope that our fellow Jews will manifest their age old idealism by lending their courageous support to so worthy an enterprise.

THE TORONTO HOSPITAL FOR INCURABLES

During the past week the Toronto Hospital for Incurables has been busily engaged in raising Three Hundred Thousand Dollars for its endowment fund. The merits of this institution need no formal recounting here. Its worth is well recognized and its present call for aid deserves the unstinting response of all who hear its fervent appeal. May all Jewry respond to this noble cause.

MONTREALER ENTERS PICTURES IN SALON

Two pictures by a young Montreal artist figure in the annual spring salon of the Societe des Artists Francais which opened May 1, at the Grand Palais des Champs Elysees in Paris. They are the work of Louis Muhlstock, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Muhlstock, 3997 St. Dominique Street, Montreal, who came to Paris in the fall of 1928 and has been studying here under the great French master, Louis-Francois Biloul. The pictures were among those submitted to a jury of artists from the thousands which are annually sent in from all parts of the world.

Mr. Muhlstock, whose parents are resident in Montreal, began his art studies at the Monument Nationale. He then studied at the Art Association of Montreal under Alberta Cleland, the late William Brymner, and E. Dyonnet, professor of classes at the association. At the same time he was in the evening classes of the Ecoles des Beaux Arts, under M. Charpentier.

The pictures on view at the salon are studies in oils, a life-size portrait of Mlle. Simone Roz, daughter of M. Firmin Roz, director of the Maison Canadienne in the Cite Universitaire in Paris, and a still life.

Mr. Muhlstock exhibited for a number of years at the spring exhibitions of the Art Association of Montreal, and the exhibitions of the Royal Canadian Academy, as well as at the National Gallery of Canada at Ottawa at the 1929 exhibition of Canadian art.

The Latest Thoughts of Paris

Expressed in FABRICS by CANADIAN CELANESE LIMITED

(From Left to Right)

In CREPE MAROCAIN. The new suave and lingerie touch, so much in favour in the mode.

In CREPE BACK SATIN. A lovely, flowing princess gown, for distinguished formal wear.

In CREPE CHARMAINE. One of our medium weight fabrics. Featuring the princess line, and low skirt fulness, for afternoon.

In MOIRE. A youthful street frock, with the new belted waistline.

The New Moulded Line Demands the Supple Grace of FABRICS by CANADIAN CELANESE LIMITED

TODAY'S silhouette! Long slender lines, moulded to the figure ... the graceful princess silhouette ... long, flaring skirts. How changed it is! How inconstant is fashion! «Yet, however often she changes her mood, she never lacks for fabrics. The vast resources of the Celanese companies* are ever at her service. Our Stylists, in intimate touch with Paris, sensing the new spirit of the mode, conspire with our Fabric Designers to create new weaves which perfectly express the new mode. In Drummondville, our huge array of looms provides, in millions of yards, the fabrics for the silhouette of Today. «Graceful fabrics, with a supple drapiness which is now the essence of success. Fabrics in great variety, for every type of dress. Fabrics so beautiful, so aware, so arresting that even Paris is thrilled and inspired ... so style right that the whole dress trade of the Dominion buys them eagerly. «From the stores you may buy these fabrics by the yard ... in their lovely individual colours. If, in your own city, you cannot find the particular shade and weave you want, write to June O'Dell, of our Shopping Service; she will see that it is obtained for you. «Canadian Celanese Limited. Women whose houses contain such plumbing conveniences as this combination fixture have more leisure for things outside of kitchen drudgery.

In one...handy laundry facilities and a splendid sink

Especially for the cottage kitchen, but also for added convenience in the roomiest house, the Crane combination sink and laundry tray is a time and labor saver in more ways than can be listed.

With it at hand, no need to use bathtub or lavatory for a washtub, when a few pieces must be washed out quickly. Nor to lose time running downstairs to the basement with clothing. Nor to trust delicate fabrics to the laundry. Nor to dread the daily wash for baby.

Dishwashing, too, it makes quicker and easier, for dishes can be carried from table to sink and from sink to cupboard on the removable drainboard of nickel silver or ash.

In building or remodeling, visit the nearby Crane Exhibit Rooms to see this and hundreds of other ideas for modern convenience in kitchen, bathroom, and laundry. Or mail the coupon for the illustrated book on decoration and arrangement, New Ideas for Bathrooms, and the handy manual, Planning the Small Bathroom. Crane offerings, and the services of a responsible plumbing contractor, will assure quality and economy in your plumbing.

Zionist Order of Habonim to be Hosts

The United Palestine Appeal for 1930, which opens in Montreal, on Sunday evening, May 11, with a dinner to be given in honour of A. J. Freiman, president of the Zionist Organization of Canada and campaign chairman, will be under the chairmanship of H. L. Sourkes with the Zionist Order of Habonim as hosts. $300,000 is the Dominion objective of the campaign, of which Montreal's share is $100,000. Mr. Freiman is a member of the Actions Committee of the World Zionist Organization, and a director of the Perley Home for Incurables, and of the Protestant Hospital of Ottawa. He has been president of Adath Jeshurun Congregation, the oldest synagogue in Ottawa, for 25 years. Speakers at the dinner include Rabbi H. Abramowitz, honorary vice-president of the Zionist Organization of Canada, and Louis Fitch, K.C., vice-president of the organization. Preceding the dinner, the Zionist Order Habonim will hold an initiation, at which Lyon Cohen, honorary vice-president of Canadian Zionist Organization, J. Levinson Sr., Samuel Hart, D. Dunkelman, of Toronto, honorary vice-president of the Zionist Organization, will be initiated as honorary members into the Order. During the week of May 11th, the canvassers will cover the city, which has been divided into three sections, known as Divisions A, B, and C. B. M. Weiner, L. Miller, A. H. Rabin, Leon D. Crestohl, Dr. M. Ratner and M. M. Schacter are the joint chairmen of these sections.

500 Women Attend Hadassah Tea

Over 500 women attended a tea, given in honour of Mrs. A. J. Freiman, Dominion Hadassah President, and Dominion chairman of the campaign for Hadassah, Monday afternoon, at the Windsor Hotel. The tea, which was under the chairmanship of Mrs. H. H. Livingstone, president of Montreal Hadassah, was attended by both senior and junior chapters. Speakers were Mrs. Freiman, Rabbi J. L. Zlotnik, Executive Director of the Zionist Organization of Canada, and H. L. Sourkes, chairman of the campaign committee of the United Palestine Appeal. Hadassah convention takes place in Ottawa, September 7. "Put your creed into your deed," was the appeal made by Rabbi Zlotnik. Mrs. Hazel Lozinski, accompanied by Miss S. Milston sang. Presentations of Golden Book certificates were made to Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Alexandor, on their 25th. anniversary; to Mrs. A. Sessenwein, for her work on behalf of the Jewish National Fund, and to Mrs. Dezwirek, in memory of her father. At the head table were: Mrs. A. J. Freiman, Rabbi J. L. Zlotnik, H. L. Sourkes, Mrs. H. H. Livingstone, and Mesdames Lyon Cohen, J. Cohen, L. Livingstone, S. Hart, L. Ripstein, of Vancouver; R. Kates, M. Garfinkle, J. Schulman, Cooperstone, S. Kahn, B. Perelmuter, H. Singer, M. Miller, of Lachine, L. Miller, L. Klineberg, Druxerman, S. Teitleman and A. Costin.

The monthly meeting of Montreal Hadassah Council took place at Zionist Headquarters, May 1, with Mrs. H. H. Livingstone, president, presiding. The Council passed a motion of condolence to Mrs. L. Fitch and E. G. Bernstein on the loss of their mother, Mrs. Bernstein.

Mrs. Alexander Lamport, Executive of American Hadassah, acknowledged with thanks $25 from Montreal Hadassah to be used in connection with her work in Palestine.

Montreal Hadassah received an official receipt from Jerusalem for some linen and money sent to help the Baby Creche there, which was raised at a small shower held in March.

The $25 "Give or Get" Campaign, which had been passed by Montreal Hadassah at a recent meeting, and which was to have been the policy for the coming season has been abandoned, and Chapters will continue in the same way as heretofore with the Annual Palestinian Fair to take place in November as usual. Mrs. J. Schulman, co-convenor, with Mrs. N. Myerson, for the Brick Campaign for the Agricultural School at Nahalal, reported that $701 had been raised here. Mrs. J. Cohen, the treasurer, reported total proceeds for April were $1069.74. National Fund Box collections for the same period as above amounted to $271 and over 200 successful calls.

The Nominations Committee appointed at last meeting headed by Mrs. L. Miller will bring in a slate at the next Council Meeting, June 5th, when elections take place. Chapters will elect their officers some time this month.

Miriam Dower Chapter met at the home of Mrs. H. Diamond, 550 Old Orchard Avenue, Tuesday afternoon, April 29. Bridge was played. Mrs. M. Levy, president, presided. Dues and money for Agricultural School were collected. Mrs. B. Gasoi won the raffle, a salt and pepper set, donated by the hostess. Mrs. M. Levy thanked the hostess. Mrs. L. Herzig, honorary president, 205 Fairmount Avenue West, has offered her home for a regular meeting Monday afternoon, May 12. Mrs. H. Livingstone, Montreal president, will be guest speaker. Election.

HEART DISEASE

The heart is a muscle organ which acts as a pump, sending the blood to all parts of the body. The blood must reach all parts because it carries the nutrition upon which depends the very life of each part. If the heart is damaged, the result is heart disease. Depending upon the nature and extent of the damage, the heart is correspondingly unable to carry out its work.

The heart muscle may be damaged as the result of infection. The poisons given off by germs are very apt to cause injuries to the heart muscle. Rheumatic fever, syphilis, diphtheria and scarlet fever are the principal diseases in which the heart is damaged by the poisons of the germs which cause them.

Another form of infection which is frequently responsible for heart disease is that which is caused by tonsillitis and diseased teeth. In such cases, there is a focus of infection in tonsils or teeth where poisons are produced by the germs living at the focus, and such poisons, when carried in the blood stream, may damage the heart.

Acute rheumatism is the chief cause for heart disease in early life. The specific cause of rheumatism is not known. It should be understood that growing pains, tonsillitis, chorea and St. Vitus' Dance are evidence of rheumatism in children.

The prevention of heart diseases begins with the maintenance of physical fitness by proper food, fresh air, sunshine, rest and play. A clean mouth, which means regular dental care, and the treatment or removal of diseased teeth; the treatment, or removal, if necessary, of diseased tonsils; prompt attention to tonsillitis or sore throat, growing pains, or painful joints, chorea or St. Vitus' Dance, are all essential, as are the prevention of diphtheria by immunization at an early age, protection against the communicable diseases and proper care of these, if contracted, with particular supervision during the convalescence.

As the individual grows older, care should be taken to avoid those conditions which, although not direct causes, do predispose the heart to damage, or to the breakdown of a heart already somewhat damaged. Such conditions are excesses of any kind, whether in food or drink, or in the manner of life. Too little or too much exercise, lack of rest, overeating and worry are some of the factors which contribute to the incidence of heart disease.

When heart disease is detected early, and the individual is able and willing to adjust his life to the capacity of a weakened organ, he very frequently outlives his friends because of the reasonable care which he gives himself.

Questions concerning Health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College St., Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

COMMENTARIES

By Rabbi HARRY J. STERN, of Montreal,
Associate Contributing Editor

A "GOY" SPEAKS OUT

One of my delightful hobbies is to tell the "goyism" a thing or two about Jews. And so it recently happened at St. Cuthbert's Presbyterian Church that I indulged in such a venture. When it came to the "open forum" a Christian gentleman in the audience delivered himself of the following interesting remarks which he graciously put in writing for me and which I offer to my readers:

"I have been sitting studying the address of Rabbi Stern this afternoon, and I feel very strongly that he has delivered to us, one of the finest addresses on tolerance that it has been my pleasure to listen to. He has also shown us the false pride and superiority which we, as Christians, carry with us, not only against the Jews, but also against other Creeds and Sects.

I particularly liked the point brought out by Rabbi Stern when he quoted that passage, 'Father, Forgive them for they know not what they do'. How many times have we listened to those words at every communion service, every Christmas and Easter service, and, immediately after, left the Church and forgot them and still looked with contempt upon the Jews whom we met every day.

We are meeting this afternoon, under the auspices of the Brotherhood Movement under the banner of World Brotherhood, and I feel that Rabbi Stern's time and our own time has been wasted, he as the speaker, and we as the hearers, unless we leave this hall carrying with us the message of good-will, remembering it and putting it into practice every day of our lives, meeting all men as brothers and extending to all the true hand of fellowship without thought of race, creed or colour. Not long ago, I met with a slight accident which necessitated my going to the Hospital. I was struck by the thought of my Jewish friend who visited me in the Hospital and gave me encouragement with the heartiness of his handshake.

Now, Mr. Chairman, I do not know if I would have done the same for my Jewish friend but I can assure you that, after listening to Rabbi Stern, I will meet all as one under God and I hope this will be the thought and aim of all present here this afternoon."

ISRAEL'S MESSENGER

In Shanghai, China, a valuable Jewish monthly publication bearing the above title has been making its appearance (with a slight interruption) for the past twenty-five years. I learned to know of this magazine and its editor, Mr. N. E. B. Ezra, while yet an embryonic Rabbi. While a student at the Hebrew Union College, I wrote an editorial for the College Bulletin which evidently pleased Mr. Ezra for the very reason he reprinted in the Messenger a goodly portion of what I had to say with comments of commendation. In fact, I remember that it was the late Professor Gotthard Deutsch, a faithful reader of the Messenger, who informed me that I was quoted in China. Since that time I have noted a keen interest in the Shanghai magazine. I enjoy reading it—though I do not receive it regularly. Very often since—Mr. Ezra has also directed sharp arrows against me—for after all I am a Reform Rabbi; he, on the other hand, is the untiring champion of traditional Judaism. But whatever differences there may be between Mr. Ezra's interpretation of Judaism and my own—we both are vitally concerned in making Judaism a living factor in the lives of Jews. I rejoice, therefore, to know that the editor of the Messenger has been for over a quarter of a century, in the Far East—"A Messenger of Good Tidings". Some day I hope to visit China and meet with Mr. Ezra personally. In the meantime, Mazol Tov to him on the twenty-sixth anniversary of Israel's Messenger.

THREE CAMPAIGNS

An old adage has it—"all good things come in threes". And so the three campaigns for funds scheduled to take place in Montreal next week are in reality good in themselves. There is no doubt about it! Certainly the United Palestine Appeal has a claim upon us—Zionists and non-Zionists. What Jew, on the other hand, can ignore the tragedy of the de-classed in the Soviet Union? Hence—The Peoples Tool Campaign requires our interest and means. Then there is a cry heard right at home. Federation has its large deficits. The Jewish poor of Montreal must be helped. And so the three appeals are here and necessary. One only wishes that he had the "gelt"—so seemingly scarce in the world these days. And then, too, that stock-market has been perpetrating some diabolic tricks upon us! At any rate—Palestine, Russia, the Poor needs—stop, look, listen———and give!

HONOR UNTO WHOM HONOR IS DUE

I note that Mr. Maxwell Goldstein, K.C., has been [illegible] elected convenor of the nominating committee of the English speaking section of the Montreal Bar Association. At the same time Mr. Peter Bercovitch K.C., has been elected to the Council of the Montreal Bar as the English Speaking Representative. Both of these gentlemen are eminent in the legal profession. If I am not in error, this is the first time that members of the Jewish faith have been elected to such offices. My good wishes to them.

Corporation News

The earnings of the subsidiary companies of the Lake Superior Corporation for the nine months ended March 31, 1930, amounted to $2,390,884, as compared with $2,818,712 for the corresponding nine months of the previous fiscal year.

The surplus earnings of the subsidiary companies for the 9 months to March 31, 1930, amounted to $1,431,235, as compared with $1,594,047, for the corresponding 9 months of the previous fiscal year.

Another reflection of the Hamilton Bridge Company's participation in the increasing construction work in Canada is the recent contract award for a bascule bridge over the Burlington Channel. The contract price is $236,005.

Sales of Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. of Canada during April have shown a slight improvement over the previous monthly period. While the management does not look for a year of business expansion, such as has been experienced in many past fiscal periods, sales have held up remarkably well, having regard to conditions in the automobile business. Production of Goodyear in April has been at the rate of 7,000 tires and about the same number of tubes. Business in other departments than tires and tubes has been holding up well.

Good prospects for a profitable year for Building Products Limited, are indicated by the results of business handled during the month of April. Stimulated activity in spring construction work, it is stated, has already caused a marked increase in business accruing to the company.

It is officially admitted that the larger revenues being enjoyed are probably due to added lines which have materially enhanced the sales volume of the company. A new siding material is one line which has been added to the output of the company's plants.

Shareholders of McColl-Frontenac Oil Company will soon be in possession of the annual statement and directors' report for the fiscal year ended January 31 last.

President John Irwin intimated that the report would be a particularly satisfactory one and would reflect the substantial expansion in business handled that took place during the year. He would not indicate whether estimates of $3 a share were likely to be substantiated by the figures of the statement, but made it clear that they would show a considerable increase over earnings shown in the previous year, which worked out at about $1.23 per share.

Net profits of the Canadian Pacific Railway for the month of March amounted to $2,098,572, as against $3,956,275 in March of last year, a decrease of $1,857,702. For the month under review, gross earnings showed a decrease of $3,333,149, while working expenses were reduced by $1,475,446.

For the first quarter of the year, net profits amounted to $3,685,847, as against $7,643,579 in the corresponding period of 1929, a decrease of $3,957,732. For the three-month period gross revenue showed a reduction of $8,931,686, at $38,930,743, while working expenses were cut $4,973,954 to $35,244,885.

Profits well maintained in view of prevailing conditions during the period and a generally satisfactory showing are indicated in the financial statement of C. W. Lindsay & Company, Limited, for the year ended February 28, 1930. Earnings on the 33,008 shares of common stock outstanding after preferred dividends are equal to $6.03 per share and compares with $6.11 in the preceding 14-month period.

Net operating profit for the 12-month period amounted to $274,179, as compared with $302,750 in the preceding 14-month period. Addition of other income at $90,767 left total income at $364,946.

Mining & Oil

Noranda continues weak, due to present low price of copper metal. Anxiety is expressed as to the safety of the company's $3.00 per share per annum dividend. At 14c for copper, Noranda could maintain this payment, by watching costs closely and treating the higher grade ore. It is doubtful, however, if the payment can be earned with copper under 14c. Reliable estimates of costs at the Horne run about 10c per pound. This is after crediting previous metals to the copper but after including current development and extraordinary expenses. Last year the costs were around 14c per pound, but this was after charging a large amount of forward work to current expenses, exceptionally heavy depreciation charges, and heavy taxes.

The market has one redeeming feature and that is the performance of the gold issues. At a time when base metal stocks are hard hit by prevailing prices, the golds are making headway with expansion programs. Lake Shore which at present is treating around 1,200 tons daily and producing about $6,000,000., will step up production in June to 2,000 tons. Earnings per ton should then be higher, grade of ore can be maintained, and costs will be cut.

An increase in mill capacity is also expected at McIntyre and if the annual report, which should be available in a short time, does not give information in this regard it is confidently expected that such will be forthcoming at the annual meeting. Reliable reports are that the mine is prepared to handle 2,000 tons daily. Ore reserves are said to amount to over $20,000,000 with additional ore being developed at a rapid rate.

Wright-Hargreaves will increase its mill this summer to 750 tons per day. Certain additions will also be made with the object of lowering cost and increasing extraction. Current millheads are higher than ever before, and it is expected a grade of $11.00 per ton can be maintained. A new system of stoping is responsible to a great degree for the betterment of millheads.

Teck-Hughes is also said to be considering a mill increase. The mine is reported to be opening up well at the lower levels. An announcement of a 300-ton mill addition is expected by the street. The present mill is treating around 360 tons daily, 660 tons in the new and 300 tons in the old.

Granada shares are still commanding attention, following a recent rise to over $2.00 per share. Stoping on the 625-foot level has disclosed a better grade of ore, but outside of this development there is nothing new at the property to account for the sudden strength. There are only 700,000 shares of Granada outstanding.

Recent selling in Amulet is traced to the drop in the price of copper. Otherwise, developments at the property are understood to be favorable. The new concentrator has started operating. The present situation makes Amulet, in common with many other producers and near-producers, vitally interested in the price of copper.

It is understood that an important announcement of interest to shareholders of Noranda Corporation, Limited, will be made by officials within the next few days, having to do with the successful completion of financing arrangements. The company's previous financial agreements made with a large Canadian bank

"Sometimes when people censure me,
I tell them without rancor,
That for what it cost me to be free,
I might have had an anchor."

Since Rabbi Abraham L. Feinberg resigned from the rabbinate because he regarded the American synagogue as devoid of idealism, Rabbi Mitchell Salem Fisher, acting rabbi of Congregation Rodeph Sholom, of New York, has quit the rabbinate because of the "dreadful contrast between what the synagogue should and can be and what the synagogue is." Retaining his "allegiance to, his zealousness for, and his love of Israel and Israel's faith", Rabbi Fisher, in his letter of resignation said:

"No sincere student of the American Jewish scene can fail to realize the tragedy now eventuating. Preachers enunciate ideals, but these must remain so indefinite, so unpointed, so unchallenging, so completely removed from the real issues of everyday living and struggling, that these ideals become patently and utterly vain. The rabbi becomes an exalted lecturer, entertainer and institution promotion agent. My colleagues may loudly protest, and will boldly assert upon learning of this letter that they are free. They may even think so. The fact remains that with very, very few exceptions none of them is the possessor of effective freedom. And those few who have won their fight to such freedom usually have done so outside of the conventional paths of rabbinical success."

Certain of Rabbi Fisher's colleagues have protested loudly no doubt, that they really are among the really free and, as he says, they may even think so. The on-looker and almost any congregant may disagree with them. To the naked eye of the observer, when a rabbi is free it is once in a blue moon. The conventional freedom accorded a rabbi is the freedom to be discreet, freedom to regard the side his bread is buttered on, the grand freedom of the bird in a gilded cage.

In discussing Rabbi Feinberg and Rabbi Fisher after their resignations, Rabbi Nathan Krass, of New York, said he could not agree with the stand they took. "Even if their criticism is justified," he said "which I am not willing to concede in every case, they should stay and reform the synagogue from within." How? Rabbi Krass ought to be more explicit. It is hard to see how a few stalwarts could reform the synagogue without reforming the congregation which would be like reforming the world, a thing which will take at least as long as it takes the Messiah to come.

It is easy to believe, rabbis being human beings, that many who thought they could reform the synagogue from within have given it up as hopeless and have followed the lines of least resistance, shrugging complacent shoulders in time at the new colleagues who want to make over the world. It takes years to prepare for the ministry. For most men it must be easier to stay in it than to get out unless they get out early in their careers. Rabbi Feinberg happens to have a fine tenor voice, they say, and enough good looks to get him an offer from the talkies. But there must be many rabbis who entered the ministry to further certain ideals who have stayed because they were fitted for the ministry only and because they had families to support.

It is a pity that Rabbi Fisher had to go into the rabbinate to discover that it might be "impossible for me to continue without the impairment of my loyalty to those ideals for whose furtherance I entered the ministry." At every training school for the rabbinate, Reform, Orthodox or Conservative, there should be an adviser to tell young prospective candidates what to expect from the average congregation. Some congregations want the sort of standardized product that Rabbi Fisher describes. They will fetter and choke a man's idealism in the most stupid ways and often finally succeed in cramming him into a pattern. Sometimes you see a synagogue too tolerant and advanced to shape an upstanding man of promise into a mere, smug careful officiator. In such a case freedom to grow for the rabbi invariably means life and vitality for the congregation which supplies him with moral support.

FIFTY YEARS OF CONSTANT ENTERPRISE

THE PILOT DOESN'T WORRY

Fifty below in the Arctic night—and a plane down, with a defective spark plug and an empty tank.

The spark plug can be replaced, but that won't help without gasoline to turn the motor—and the nearest "town" is a few Eskimos and a trading post across the lake at Blackfish Point.

But the pilot doesn't worry. He knows there is a cache of Imperial Gasoline at Blackfish, and someone there to help him.

The great wealth of Canada's north is being found from the air many years before it could be reached afoot, because men are willing to adventure and supplies are there when they are needed.

These supplies come from the Imperial Oil Refineries. By ship up through Hudson Strait into the Bay, by rail beyond the Pas, by paddle wheeler down the Peace and MacKenzie Rivers they go to distributing points. In winter, dog teams and sleds drag them further into the wilderness.

For fifty years Imperial Oil has been meeting the new needs of transportation and industry. Because it has met each need with enterprise and energy, Imperial has become a great company—serving every corner of Canada—its ships on the Atlantic and Pacific—its pipe-lines in the tropics.

Fifty years of constant enterprise are in the products Imperial Oil sells today.

Imperial Premier and Imperial Ethyl are its best gasolines.

Which means that nothing finer can be put in your car.

New Loop Begins Season

The latest addition to the Jewish community's Softball Leagues swings into action Tuesday evening, May 13th., at the big diamond in Bellwoods Park, when the newly-organized Jewish Fraternal Softball Loop, begins their season. Rabbi M. N. Eisendrath and Rabbi S. Sachs will be present. At 7 p.m., the Judean Glee Club will give a take-off of a World Series, under the direction of Benny Cohen and Hy Bossin. President Mark Covant will appoint the honorary ball players from the guests. The Judean team will have Benny Robinson, Harry Polevoy, with Gideons last year; I. R. Oelbaum of the "Y" team, and Sam Feldt. The team will line up as follows: Scheff, behind the plate; either Duke or Robinson, twirling; Oelbaum on first; Ben Gudofsky on second; Feldt or Robinson on short, with Polevoy battling it out with Roy Gudofsky at the "Red-light" corner. Feldt Greenbaum and a few others will be out to make the odd position in the outfield, as "Lefty" Starr, who broke in with a vengeance into Senior ball last week, and Joe Shimmerman look like good bets to repeat. Bnai Brith are promising some surprises, with their best addition being Morrie Lavine at shortstop. Izzie Wilson and Harry Sniderman have been added to the twirling staff. Friday night game, I.O.F. meets the rival Judean Lodge of the K. of P. The Executive is under A. G. Dunn. Several of the teams who have played senior in the Jewish Community League, have been graduates of this League, among them being, the Hassies, Zangwills, Gideons. The Thursday twin bill will be played at the big diamond in Bellwoods Park. Wednesdays the League will stage another twin bill at the Queen St. diamond in Trinity Park. Next Thursday night, two games will take place on the regular field, Young Maccabees playing the West Toronto outfit in the first game, while the two junior lodges, Grand Order of Israel, and A.Z.A., meet in the late game. Canter, their twirler, has made a fine showing in Boys' Council final games, and should make the Junior Bnai Brith team a contender.

Who aims at excellence will be above mediocrity; who aims at mediocrity will fall short of it.

BYRON OF BROADWAY AT LOEW'S NEXT WEEK

A stage story with stage stars and the most elaborate stage effects filmed in months is "Byron of Broadway" which opens a week's showing at Loew's Theatre next Monday. The engaging smile of Ethelind Terry, she of the winsome face and sprightly feet beloved of Broadway, will illuminate the scenes of this swiftly paced romance. Charles Kaley, likewise of New York fame, will play opposite to the charming little actress. Among the screen's standbys will be seen Cliff Edwards, Gwen Lee and Benny Rubin. Among the other stage celebs will be seen Marion Shilling, Rita Flynn, Hazel Craven and Paulette Duquet.

Ethelind Terry is the little beauty who scored for three seasons in Rio Rita. Charles Kaley was the star of Earl Carroll's Vanities all of them sing and dance with gayety and charm and the color sequences are cleverly employed to preserve the atmosphere in which these stage stars have played. There are wonderful song numbers and plenty of them and everything from story to sets are authentic reproductions of Broadway life.

Carl Shaw, greatest of American dancers, will be seen on a very snappy stage bill which compliments the feature film, which is of course all talking, all singing and all stepping.

NORTHERN ONTARIO CANADA

Northern Ontario, now open for settlement at fifty cents per acre, contains millions of acres of the finest agricultural land in the world. Its resources in lumber, mines, water power, fish, game and scenery are immense. The land calls for men to cultivate it, and in return gives health, comfort and prosperity.

What settlers say of the climate, farming, and forest wealth is told in a most attractive booklet issued under the direction of the Honourable John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario. Full instructions in regards to acquiring a farm in these rich agricultural districts are also given.

HIS FIRST VISIT

Pauline Schwartz

Dr. Smulevitch paced to and fro in his surgery. His feet were encased in red felt slippers — he wore a brightly colored dressing-gown. It was nearly eight o'clock. He did not even hope to receive any patients before ten, for that, according to the polished plate on the door, was the psychological moment. "D. M. Smulevitch, M.B., B.S. Morning: 10-12. Evening: 7-9." So there was little fear of anybody discovering him in deshabille.

But he was anxious, apprehensive. The first morning, in his first private practice. Friends had advised him to settle here, in this particular corner of the East End. The people were poor, he was told. They would not come to him with imaginary illnesses — they would not invite encouragement for laziness, for over-indulgence, as did their richer brothers and sisters. It would be splendid experience for him. Dr. Smulevitch was young, eager.

The bell rang. Forgetting his unprofessional appearance, he turned to the door. A man, about thirty-five, shabbily dressed, and with several days' growth of beard on his thin face, greeted him nervously. "Are you the doctor, please?" He looked incredulous — he had always imagined that doctors wore spotless white overalls — these garments, in comparison, were strange, fantastic.

"Yes, come in." Isaac Bernstein sat on the edge of a chair. "Look, doctor." His voice, owing to his nervousness, took on a harsh, commanding tone. He held out half-a-crown. "You see, I don't want charity. Only a favour. The baby is ill. Rivkah says if she takes the little one out in this cold weather she will, God forbid, kill it. So . . . "

"So you want me to come to your house, eh?" The doctor smiled pleasantly. "I'll come. You're my first patient, by the way," he added. "And may it be a good hour," said Isaac earnestly. He eyed the young doctor with admiration. "But you'll be all right. Oh, yes, a handsome doctor needs no skill., and a beautiful maiden no dowry." An ambiguous remark, but full of well-meaning. And accepted as such.

"Well," said the doctor, suddenly assuming an important air. "I'm a very busy man. But, let me see. I'm not yet officially open to the public. Not till ten o'clock. I'll come along now." Isaac held out the half-crown again. The doctor accepted it — his first fee. With difficulty he resisted a boyish temptation to kiss it for luck. He fingered it affectionately, examined it both sides, and put it into his pocket. Then slapped his trousers with a show of tremendous satisfaction. "Well! Are you coming with me?"

Isaac looked distressed. "I can't — the doors of the factory close at a quarter past eight. I shall be locked out if I don't go at once. Then go and tell a bitter tale to a barred gate."

"Right! Where do you live? I'll go along."

Isaac directed him carefully, mumbled his thanks and hurried out. He felt troubled, full of regrets that he had not shown more respect for the doctor.

About a quarter of an hour later Dr. Smulevitch stepped out of his car at Pope's Head Alley. Two rows of tiny houses, not more than sixteen feet high — the two pavements about four feet wide, the road between them about three. At any rate, the children here were safe from traffic — they ran about freely, each step punctuated by a terrific, ear-piercing yell. Dr. Smulevitch cursed himself for having brought the car. He would have to leave it in Buxton Street — impossible, of course, to drag it into Pope's Head Alley. There was always a chance of it being stolen, he reflected with faint amusement. So he would have to make his professional visit brief.

The house he sought was only two doors down. He stopped at the door and knocked. Immediately, with uncanny speed, every doorstep was graced by a female. He was eyed curiously, reverently. He knocked again. The women quickly collected in small groups, never for a moment taking their eyes from him. They were filled with awe and wonder. A rich man knocking at Mrs. Bernstein's door. They argued, gesticulated. It never for a moment occurred to them that the well-dressed man was a doctor. How could it? Doctors never came to these houses. If people were ill, they went to the hospital. If they were too ill to go — or in the event of a sudden and dangerous accident, an ambulance came and took them to the hospital. This visit was, therefore, in no way associated with illness.

"Messiach has come!" said a woman. "Messiach!" repeated a neighbour, scornfully. "And why would he be knocking at Mrs. Bernstein's door first? Is she better than us?" Although there was little open hostility, these women bore Mrs. Bernstein a grudge. She was different from them. So quiet and reserved. Almost like the Goyim, they thought contemptuously. In the Ghetto, men and women were not ashamed of their emotions. Everything was shared, everything was taken, almost staggeringly, to another person's bosom. Everything that came to them, every joy, every sorrow, was regarded as an important message from God, which they were obliged, as a solemn duty, to make public knowledge. Somehow, Mrs. Bernstein mystified them, eluded them. She had built a huge, and insurmountable barrier around her. Through this barrier only laughter, only rare but jocund remarks were allowed to escape — everything else, all other emotions, were buried deeply. The other men and women, true children of the Ghetto, resented this.

The street door was opened, and the doctor walked in. Really in, for there was no passage. The door led directly into the rooms. Mrs. Bernstein, who had prayed for this visit, gazed speechlessly and anxiously at the young doctor. When, breathing in the smell of cats, mingled unpleasantly with cooking, with camphorated oil, and with bedding, he sniffed involuntarily. Mr. Bernstein sighed. Yes, he was a real gentleman. She was convinced of that.

The doctor sat down quickly. In fact, it was dangerous for him to remain standing, for his head almost touched the low ceiling. Raising it in a moment of jubilation or excitement, it would strike the ceiling unpleasantly. He winced at the thought of the averted encounter.

Three small children, of grotesque facial similarity, were sprawling on the floor, industriously tearing sheets of newspaper. There was obviously little difference in years between them—the eldest must have been about six—the youngest two.

The room was tiny. The walls were covered with dirty paper, on which lay faded roses of a nondescript colour, with thick green stems. There were two leaves and three buds to every rose, the two leaves one on either side of the stalk, the three buds in a cluster near the bottom of the stem. This was repeated again and again with a sense of monotony which became positively maddening. The artist had probably prided himself on a knowledge of botany. Against the wall near the door was a huge dresser, which held a miscellaneous array of crockery. Against another wall was a sofa, the leather of which had been worn out with continual use, and which now displayed an interior of rags and straw with incredible shamelessness. There were four kitchen chairs, one of which had lost a leg, and was perched between the cupboard and the sofa for safety. The remains of the family's breakfast were still on the table.

The clock on the mantelpiece was standing on its side, an illness in its interior necessitating this. When one wanted to see the time, one picked the clock up, scrutinised its face scornfully, and banged it down again with a degree of contempt usually reserved for human beings.

In a corner of the room was a gas stove and a sink, the latter also suffering from some infirmity, and dripping miserably. Above this, suspended from a tremendous nail, hung Isaac's Phylacteries, so that they could not be forgotten after he had washed in the morning. A broken door revealed the bedroom from which the entire family had recently emerged. Mrs. Bernstein hastily cleared the table, in case the doctor should want to rest his elbow.

He looked at her kindly. She was worn out, thin—she could hardly be more than thirty, yet her hair was almost grey, her face and forehead heavily lined. "Well, and how's the patient?" he asked in a cheerful voice. She held out her baby anxiously. "You see doctor, he breathes so heavily—it's terrible!" He examined the infant carefully—bronchitis, as a result of teething. A common enough ailment, he had treated hundreds of similar cases in the hospital. "Do you feed the child yourself?" he asked. It looked unhealthy, under-nourished. Mrs. Bernstein put her hand on her thin bosom, with a gesture of despair. "No," she said sadly. "I don't feed it myself. What goodness would he get from me?" The doctor suddenly felt an unspeakable bitterness in his heart. He glanced round the room for a moment in silence. What could he say? And the children's yells outside were deafening—so that he had to choose his moment to speak.

The door opened unceremoniously. A kitten was flung into the centre of the room, where it proceeded to set up a piteous moaning. "Here you are, I'm giving away the kittens. I don't want them lying on my head, so I've brought you one, Mrs. Bernstein." A woman thrust an unkempt head into the room, glared resentfully at the gentleman, who, having aroused in her a devouring curiosity, was the cause of this generosity; withdrew, and slammed the door ferociously.

Mrs. Bernstein eyed the doctor in sad speechlessness, and paced up and down the little room. The doctor took the baby from her arms and glanced at it again. "Who reads these books?" he asked, pointing to some large, crudely bound volumes on the mantelpiece. "My husband," said Mrs. Bernstein, shamefacedly. In her heart she felt sure that were it not for her husband's unpleasable hunger for book-learning he would be more proud, more [illegible]. Life's but a word, a shadowing dream,
Compar'd to essential honor.

If well respected Honor is the bane
I hold as little counsel with weak fear,
As you.

JEWISH BOOK WEEK

Striking a reminiscent note in his address, "Canadian Literature," before members of the Jewish Literary and Historical Society at the Mount Royal Hotel Sunday, May 5, Dr. W. D. Lighthall, national president of the Canadian Authors' Association, told of his association during school and in later days with Clarence de Sola. The occasion was a special meeting called to inaugurate Jewish Book Week in sympathy with similar celebrations in the United States.

The object of Jewish writers, Dr. Lighthall said, should be to serve the wants and ideas of the Jews in Canada. "Preserve all that is good in your writings; cherish the picturesque. Serve the country, the Canadian nation of which you are a part. For upon you as well as us devolves the charge of developing the heritage that was bequeathed to us by our ancestors. Patriotism and service are two requisites to hold uppermost to fulfil your part in Canadian literature."

Isidor G. Ascher was the first Jewish poet in Canada. The speaker referred to Hyman Edelstein, president of the Jewish Literary and Historical Society of Canada, as one who was striking a new note in Canadian Jewish poetry by his beauty of phrase and verse music.

During the course of his address, Dr. Lighthall attributed the final signing of the Balfour Declaration to the efforts of Clarence de Sola. "It was his efforts when Earl Balfour was visiting Canada that decided the issue. He convinced him upon every point and assured him of the necessity for colonization by the Jews in Palestine. And for that reason the Jewish community should revere the memory of their great co-religionist."

Mr. Edelstein, the president, showed why it was that nationality and literature were inseparable. Miss Lily Shapiro, a pupil of W. Lieber, played the piano.

SYNAGOGUE ORGANIZES ONEG SHABBOS BRANCH

A branch of the Oneg Shabbos, an institution inaugurated in Palestine by the national poet, Chaim N. Bialik, to revive the old Sabbath, has been established here by Bnai Jacob Synagogue, Fairmount Avenue. Commencing this Friday evening, at nine o'clock, a programme, consisting of religious and folk melodies, as well as songs of the "Sabbath Zmiroth," will be given by Cantor D. Katzman and his choir. Wise sayings from the Torah will be recited. The evening of Friday, May 9, will be an Erez Israel Shabbos, and the programme will be dedicated to the Inauguration of the United Palestine Appeal in Montreal. Palestinian songs will be given. Rabbi J. L. Zlotnik will lecture on the "A, B, C of Zionism." Dr. Zvi Cohen, Executive Director of the United Talmud Torahs, will address the society on Friday, May 16, on "Rabbi Bachya, the Father of Jewish Ethics." May 23, H. Wolofsky will speak on "The Inexhaustible Fountain-Head," that evening being dedicated to the United Talmud Torahs. May 30, Louis Glazer, will lecture in English on "The Message of Old Jewish Holidays for Modern Men in Modern Life," as that evening is the eve of Shevuoth.
